RALLY IS HELD AT WESTMOUNT

A Big Recruiting Meeting Is Held in Victoria Hall.

SIR W. PETERSON SPOKE

He Dwelt at Length Upon the Attitude of Germany in Present War.

Principal Peterson was one of the speakers at a recruiting meeting in Victoria Hall, Westmount, last evening. In his opinion the duty of every man is clear. If in good health, and of military age, he must ask himself if he has a just impediment for not enlisting. If he has no moral reason for taking such a stand, it is undoubtedly his duty to join for overseas service at once. What would be the result if all failed to do their duty? Now is the time to go. The strength of the enemy has now reached its maximum height. All of their great resources are being used up. They are rapidly decreasing in power. Our strength must increase.

It is no longer a case of fighting for the Old Country. It is now a case of fighting for our lives. Some people seem to have a different opinion. They think that the war is almost over, and that the time has come to form a peace meeting, to tell the troublesome little boys to stop quarreling, to go home and be good. In spite of this opinion, which is fortunately held by a very few who are ignorant of the facts, we can not have peace until the originators of this "manufactured horror of war" have been crushed. Then, and only then, we will have a true and lasting peace.

The Kaiser stated that the sword was thrust into his hand. Principal Peterson said that he hoped it would cut him. It has done so several times. It will continue to do so. Germany's statement that the war has been forced upon them is an empty lie. Italy knew this, since she joined us. The overseas would not have been so ready to join if there had been any possible taint of jingoism in Britain's policy. Our men would not have been so eager to enlist if they had not been certain that they were in the right. Canada knows that Great Britain's stand is an honorable one, the only one possible. In her broader vision our Dominion sees herself as one of many component states. She cannot work alone.

Canada is ready to use every means to carry the Empire to victory.

Col. Magee, of the 148th Battalion, also addressed the meeting. This was only his second recruiting speech, since he has not felt called upon to tell others to go until he knew that he was going himself, until he could say come. It is the duty of every man who is physically fit, he said, to enlist. Those who are not physically fit have also their duty. They should encourage others to go. They must fill the places which able men must vacate. No able-bodied man is exempt from active service because he holds a responsible position. He has a duty to his country. Those who are not physically fit must remove his responsibilities.

Col. Magee said that he knew from experience that when a man has enlisted, he will find the moment of his appearance in uniform the happiest moment of his life.

H. R. H. Princess Patricia of Connaught will attend the orchestral concert which will be held at the Royal Victoria College to-morrow evening, at 8.30 o'clock, under the auspices of the McGill Women's Union, in conjunction with the Conservatorium of Music. The proceeds will be used to supply comforts for the men at the front. An excellent programme has been arranged, to which members of the Conservatorium staff will contribute.

UNIVS. COMPANY GETS MANY MEN

Dozen Recruits From Saskatoon College Joined Yesterday.

P. C. GRADUATE IN RANKS

There Are Twenty Men From Alberta to Join This Morning.

The 5th Universities Company reports a long recruiting list for this week. On Monday eighteen men signed up and yesterday five. As seen from the appended list a large number of Monday's recruits came from Saskatoon. Of these a dozen men came from Emmanuel Divinity College, in Saskatoon, and one of the officers of the Company assured the Daily representative that they were the very finest of men. There is, too, in the ranks, a Presbyterian minister, who has come all the way from British Columbia to join the Company.

Up to date then the strength of the Company is ninety-six. Twenty additional men arrived to-day from Alberta, and they will report in the morning. Further, thirty more men are expected from the West this week, so that one hundred and sixteen men will be enrolled this morning and by the end of the week one hundred and forty-six, or more than half the company will have been recruited in little over two weeks of recruiting. The Company is, indeed, to be congratulated on their admirable record.

4TH COMPANY IN ENGLAND

WERE ON THE LAPLAND

A despatch sent out from the Censor's Office at Ottawa yesterday, stated that the Fourth Universities Company, reinforcements P.P.C.L.I., had arrived safely in England on the steamer Lapland.

The departure of the Fourth Universities Company from Montreal was in few respects different from that of other overseas units from the city. If it differed at all, it was in the smallness of the crowd which followed the Company to Bonaventure Station, and remained there until the special train over the Intercolonial drew out. It is possible that this was due to the fact that the hour of departure was not widely known throughout the city, strict instructions having been received from Ottawa to prevent, if possible, this information being made public.

At seven o'clock p.m. on November 25, the Company fell in on the old campus with their full active service equipment. Rolls were called and reports made, showing a full attendance. Shortly afterwards the C. O. T. C. band at full strength, and led by Drum Major Tom Graydon, arrived on the campus and commenced playing patriotic airs. Attracted by the music, a small crowd soon gathered, many McGill undergraduates and professors being noticed. The Company was formed up in line for a time and those wishing to do so, had an opportunity of saying good-bye to the men.

At 7.30 the Company moved off with the C. O. T. C. band in the lead, and Lt.-Col. Starke, O.C. the C. O. T. C., Capt. J. C. Simpson, Adjutant of the C. O. T. C., and Captain A. S. Eve, who had trained the Company, and other officers of the Contingent followed after. Men from the Third Siege Battery, Heavy Artillery, carried torches.

The route of march followed was via Sherbrooke, Peel and Windsor streets to Bonaventure Station, where a small crowd was already waiting. Soldiers with fixed bayonets, and a squad of policemen guarded all entrances to the station and prevented outsiders from gaining admission, while the 4th Company filed in through the St. James street gate. Little demonstration was made by the crowd and there was scarcely any cheering. Later, those interested were admitted to the trainshed. "Nigger," the mascot, as if he knew that he could not accompany the unit overseas, failed to appear on parade for the first time since the Company was formed.

The nominal roll of the Fourth Universities Company is as follows:

- Lieut. J. R. Mitchener, Ottawa.
- No. 1 Platoon—Lieut. C. C. Robinson, Toronto.
- No. 2 Platoon—Lieut. H. W. Cheney, Toronto.

Studies and Health

It is at this period of the session that the strain of two months' hard and continuous work is first felt by all undergraduates, and the happy release of the Christmas vacation is anxiously awaited. After this period of strenuous work, occupying the major portion of the time of each of us, we are, unless we have led an extremely healthy life, less alert and less capable of absorbing the large amount of new matter which is of necessity put before us in a college course.

Students labor under a great disadvantage in that they are required to do a large amount of brain work, whilst living a life which is for most of us, almost notoriously unhealthy, and it is our duty to our Alma Mater as well as to ourselves to make the best of the opportunities which are offered us of remedying to some extent at least, the effects of the sedentary life natural to our present vocation.

First comes the matter of fresh air. It is highly important to every one that they should take full advantage of the vitalizing and regenerative powers of this truly priceless commodity. This we may do to some extent by living in well-ventilated rooms. Certain students seem to take delight in shutting themselves up in an atmosphere which certainly does them no good. Each of us should spend a reasonable portion of each day in the open air.

The next consideration is that of exercise. Many forms of this are open to men who care to take them up, and of these the C. O. T. C., and the various classes in athletics are the ones that immediately come to mind. Any of these may be indulged in at little cost either of time or of money, and it is hardly necessary for the Daily to enlarge upon the benefits which are undoubtedly derived from participation in these forms of exercise. However, the fact remains that only a small proportion of students do or will avail themselves of these opportunities. To these the Daily would say "walk." Walking is the finest all-round exercise known to man, and when combined with the beneficial influence of fresh air, it is well calculated to keep one in good condition.

The matter of diet is one which does not receive the attention it merits. Not only are we dependent on the quantity, but also on the quality and nature of the food which is used by our bodies to supply the energy necessary for our many activities. Each individual finds from experience that certain articles of diet are suited, and others unsuited to him, and he should take care to see that he obtains the benefit of such experience by the choice of suitable food.

Sleep is another important factor in the maintenance of health. Again in this case, different individuals require different amounts for the preservation of their health, and it is only on the personal experience of each that any definite rule can be found. However, it is safe to say that none of us can do with less than six hours, and that eight hours is a more suitable allowance for the majority. If we reduce this, even for the purpose of study, less useful work is actually done, since the efficiency of the brain is inevitably lowered and poorer and slower work results.

The final aspect of the question with which we will now deal is the subject of recreation. No one of us can afford to live without some of the pastimes or hobbies which go so far to make life agreeable, but here again we are met with the remarkable divergence of human tastes. Perhaps in no way is the disparity between different natures better seen than in the different forms of amusement which appeal to them most, and it is therefore quite impossible to deal in a general manner with this subject. But, notwithstanding, there is no doubt that each one of us should see that sufficient time is devoted to recreation.

It is up to us to see that sufficient of our time, attention and energy is devoted to the various components which together make up the true University life.

Editorial Notes

The Minnesota Daily, the student organ of the University of Minnesota, which was asked to send a representative to accompany the Ford Peace Expedition to Europe, speaks, and speaks well, of the undertaking in the following words:

In declining to appoint a student to go upon Mr. Ford's peace ship, the All-University Council has acted wisely. It is generally conceded that this expedition smacks of the foolhardy character and without going into the question of the motives which prompted its conception there can be no doubt but that it is an ill advised idea. However desirable peace may be the initial movement should and must come from the President of the United States and not from a private individual. When warring nations are not in a frame of mind to consider intervention from governments, meddling on the part of people in private life will be doomed to ridicule if not positive resentment. STUDENTS WHO SAIL ON FORD PEACE SHIP

Two Young Ladies From Columbia University Accepted Ford's Invitation.

Two Columbia students, Wayne Wellman '17, and Miss Elizabeth Hall, of Barnard, have accepted the invitation of Henry Ford to sail on his peace ship, Oscar II, for Europe, "to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas." L. P. Lockner, Ford's secretary, verified this information to a reporter of the Columbia Spectator. It was reported that L. R. Robinson '16 had accepted an invitation to accompany the pacifists, but this was denied by the authorities.

Three other students were asked to go on the Oscar II. These were: E. M. Earle '17, J. W. Danahy '17, and S. Sokolsky '17. None of these students were able to arrange to sail. Dr. H. W. L. Dana, of the English department of Columbia, was asked by representatives of Mr. Ford to name several Columbia students who might look with favor on an invitation to accompany the peace expedition of the Detroit auto manufacturer. Dr. Dana recommended the students mentioned above, they having been prominent in campus peace societies. President Butler was the first to be approached with the request that he name several Columbia men for the voyage, but he declined to act in this capacity. Dean P. P. Keppel also refused to assist in the selection of students for the peace trip.

Miss Hall is an associate editor of the Barnard Bear, the weekly student publication of Barnard College. She is also a member of the Barnard Socialist Club, which is allied with a similar organization of Columbia, of which Wellman is president. Both have been active in peace and anti-militarism movements on the campus.

MAY REINSTATE YALE STARS.

The reinstatement of amateurs of Harry Le Gore and the four other Yale athletic stars who were disqualified for playing summer baseball, seemed likely yesterday, following the informal conferences of the athletic committees of Yale, Harvard and Princeton. Prof. Robert N. Corwin, chairman of the Yale Athletic Committee, said the cause had been considered only informally, but a ruling was expected soon. Arthur Milburn, Harry Rhett, Wm. Easton and Spencer Pumpelly were disqualified with Le Gore.

STUDENTS ARE INJURED.

Ten Regina Collegiate students were injured, four of them requiring medical assistance, when a rattling around the balcony of the gymnasium auditorium broke while they were watching a basketball game. The students fell 20 feet to the floor.

ORIENTAL SOCIETY.

Dr. H. M. Aml, of the Geological Survey, Ottawa, was unable to address the Oriental Society last night owing to another engagement. Instead, he will speak before the society next Tuesday evening on "The Turks and the Present Crisis," illustrated with entirely new lantern slides.

student body of the University to join this scheme would be taking upon himself a capacity to which he is neither well suited nor well informed. Alignment with an idea which has received but scant consideration from thinking men on the part of an undergraduate body would be most unhappy. In participating in a movement to show the foolishness of war a University might well join but to give countenance to Mr. Ford's plan would only involve unfavorable criticism in the final analysis.

Although over two months have elapsed since college opened, certain Freshmen have not yet been able to distinguish between the McGill and Toronto yells. It is surprising that the minds of certain students should be so depraved as to amuse themselves every time the battalion is on parade by bursting forth with the Toronto yell. The good old McGill yell has suited thousands of students in the past, and at present is being given with fervor on every battle-front in the world. So let the Daily remind the Freshmen that the McGill yell is theirs, and that the Toronto yell is only to be used as a mark of courtesy whenever the students of the latter University are here visiting us.

ANECDOTES OF THE DOCTORS AND SURGEONS OF EDINBURGH

FAMOUS MEDICAL MEN

The Three Alexander Monros —
—Dr. John Barclay—Dr. John Goodstir—Dr. Robert Knox—
—Dr. John Reid—Dr. Black—
—Dr. John Bennet—Dr. Alexander Wood—Dr. Gregory.

The medical schools of Edinburgh have long and famous histories since the date of their incorporation, July 1, 1505, and have produced many of the most famous physicians and surgeons the world has known. Notwithstanding their long hours and heavy responsibilities, many of them are noted for their keen wit and humor, as shown by a large number of anecdotes.

The three Alexander Monros, known as primus, secundus and tertius, held the professorship between them for 126 years, from 1720 to 1846. The first Munro distinguished himself by caring for the wounded of both sides at the battle of Prestonpans. The second Munro made an odd bargain with the Town Council. If they would appoint his son to succeed him, he would carefully train him for the post in the best schools, both at home and abroad. When he had completed his education, his father invited the notables of the city to hear his first lecture. Munro third had got it up by heart, but through excitement forgot every word of it; he had to speak extempore, yet he knew his subject and made a telling address. He delivered lectures without notes ever afterward. He was, however, not equal to the father and grandfather. The memory of his great predecessors was too much for him.

He had as his rival the famous Dr. John Barclay, lecturer on anatomy, 1797-1825. Barclay's lectures were flavored with caustic old Edinburgh wit. He warned his students to beware of discoveries of anatomy. "In a field so well wrought, what remained to discover? As at harvest, first come the reapers to the uncut grain and then the gleaners, and finally the geese, idly poking among the rubbish. Gentlemen, we are the geese!" Barclay had collected a considerable museum, of which a fine elephant, an early Jumbo in fact, was the gem. When his friends tried to get a chair of comparative anatomy founded for him in the university, the medical faculty opposed it. One of Kay's most famous caricatures represented Barclay seated on an elephant charging the college gate, which is barred against him. Barclay had been brought up for the church, and after supplying the pulpit of Rev. Baird, of Boness, "How did they like him?" asked Mr. Baird, of Sandy, the village sage. "Gey weel, minister, gey weel; but everybody thought him daft." "Why, Sandy?" "Oh, for gude reasons, minister; Mr. Barclay was aye skinning puddocks (frogs)." Dogs fled in terror at the sight of him. He had incautiously cut up a dog in the presence of his kind, and had an ill-name in the canine world. Not that this implied any ill-will to dogs; quite the contrary, as witness a story of Dr. John Goodstir, who had carefully studied the anatomy of the horse. "I love the horse, I love the horse," he said with fervor. "I have dissected him twice."

Dr. Robert Knox was one of the most striking figures of his time. Through an attack of measles in his youth, he had lost his left eye and his features were badly disfigured. Yet he was widely read and of wide culture, and a prime favorite with women. In a city of superior talkers, his biographer ranks him as a conversationalist superior to DeQuincey. Though he was singularly tender-hearted and opposed experimentation on living animals, he was nevertheless an enthusiastic scientist. He spent $15,000 on a whale which he dissected and whose skeleton he secured for the museum. He was very careful in his dress and person. His friend, Dr. Macdonald, professor of natural history in St. Andrews, calling upon him one day, found him with his sister. She had a pair of curling-tongs in her hand, with which she was touching up her brother's rather scanty locks. "Ah, ah! I see," said Macdonald, "the modern Apollo attired by the Graces." Knox was not unduly disturbed by remarks of this sort.

One of Munro's pupils, the opposite camp, wagged that he would put the anatomist out of sorts. He confronted Dr. Knox on the street, saying, "Well, by Jove, Dr. Knox, you are the ugliest fellow I ever saw in my life!" Knox quietly patted the impudent student on the shoulder. "Ah, then you cannot have seen my brother Fred." Dr. Knox was involved in an unfortunate dissection case, and though exonerated by the court, lived a large part of his life under its shadow. Once when walking in the Meadows with Dr. Adams, Knox gave a penny to a pretty little girl who was playing there. "Will you come and live with me," he said, jestingly, "if I give you a penny every day?" The child shook her head. "No; you maybe sell me to Dr. Knox." He was more affected by this childish thrust than by the hostility of the mob.

Dr. John Reid, the physiologist, had dissected two sharks, in which he could discover no sign of a brain; he was much perplexed. "How on earth could the animals live without it?" he said to Knox. "Not the least extraordinary," was the answer. "If you go over to the Parliament House any morning you will see a great number of live sharks walking about without any brains whatever."

Dr. Black had a shop in the High street, the taxes on which were much in arrears, and Archibald Campbell, the city officer, threatened to seize his cattinny (ipeacawanna) bottles. Black connected the handle of his door with an electric battery and awaited developments. First came a clerk, who got nothing more than a good fright. He appeared before his master, who asked him what he meant by being "trunk like a peast" at that time of day. He set off for the doctor's himself, but when he seized the door-handle he received a shock that sent him reeling into the gutter. "Ah," said one of the bystanders, who no doubt was in the secret, "you sometimes accused me of liking a glass, but I think the doctor has given you a tumbler!" "No, sir," cried Archie, as soon as he had recovered his speech. "He shot me through the shoulder with a horse pistol. I heard the report—Laddie, do you see any blood?"

Dr. John Bennet, president of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1803, a very slender man, once asked a tailor if he could measure him for a suit of small clothes. "Oh," said the man of the shears, "hold up your stick; it will serve the purpose well enough."

Dr. Alexander Wood (1725-1807), one of the best known surgeons of old Edinburgh, and Sir James Stirling, the Provost of Edinburgh, were so alike that they were often mistaken for each other. The Provost was politically unpopular, and an angry mob once dragged Wood to the edge of the North Bridge with the intention of throwing him over. He yelled out: "I'm lang Sandy Wood; tak' me to a lamp and ye'll see, and the crowd dispersed with shouts of laughter."

The younger Dr. Gregory (1753-1821) became one of the Royal Edinburgh volunteers. Sergt. Gould said of him: "He may be a good physician, but he is a very awkward soldier." He asked too many questions. "Sir," said the instructor, "you are here to obey orders and not to ask reasons." And again, "Hold your tongue, sir. I would rather drill ten clowns than one philosopher." Gregory visited Matthew Baillie (1761-1823), in London. Afterwards, Gregory said: "Baillie knows nothing but physics." "Gregory," he said, "seems to know everything but physics." A fashionable lady once troubled Baillie with a long account of imaginary ills. He managed to escape, but was recalled by an urgent message. "Might she eat some oysters on her return from the opera?" "Yes, ma'am," said Baillie, "she'll all right."

Dr. Robert Liston lectured as assistant with Prof. James Syme. It was said of him that "he never wasted a word, nor a drop of ink, nor a drop of blood."

Sir William Fergusson (1808-1877), who later became president of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, was remarkable for the speed and certainty of his work. "Look out sharp," said a student; "if you only even wink, you'll miss the opportunity altogether." There must have been something magical in the touch of these great operators. One of his patients said: "When Fergusson put his hand upon me to examine my jaw, I felt that he was the man to do the operation for me, the contrast between his examination and that of the others was so great." Once when operating upon a large, deep-seated tumor in the neck, a severed artery gave forth an enormous quantity of blood; an assistant stopped the wound with his finger. "Just get your finger out of the way and let's see what it is," and, quick as lightning, he had the artery tied up.

Dr. John Bell, one of the two famous brothers, had a large practice and charged large fees for his operations. A rich country laird once gave him a fee of £250, which the surgeon thought not enough. As the butler opened the door for him, the doctor said to him: "You have had considerable trouble opening the door for me; here is a trifle for you," and handed the money to him. The laird took the hint and forwarded the surgeon a cheque for £750.

Sir James Young Simpson (1811-1870), the discoverer of chloroform, was also an accomplished scholar and antiquarian. An apology was made to him because he had been kept waiting for a ferry-boat. "Oh, dear, no," said he. "It was all the time busy chloroforming the eels in the pool." Parting from a young doctor who had started a carriage, he said: "I have just been telling him I will pray for his humility." He would not have in his working library any scientific book that was over ten years old. The final trial of chloroform was made on November 28, 1837. Dr. Simpson and his two assistants, Dr. Keith and Dr. Duncan, experimented on themselves. Dr. Simpson went off and was roused by the snoring of Dr. Duncan and the convulsive movements of Dr. Keith. He saw that the great discovery had come to a successful end. Dr. Simpson went on with his experiments. Once he became insensible under the influence of some drug. As he came to himself, he heard his butler, Clarke, shouting in anger and concern: "He'll kill himself yet wi' the experiments, an' he's a big fule, for they'll never find anything better than chloroform." On another occasion, Simpson and some friends were taking chloral ether in terated water. Clarke was much interested in the "new champagne chloroform." He took what was left downstairs and administered it to the cook, who presently became insensible. The butler in great alarm burst in upon the assembled men of science: "For

A STUDENT—NOT A SPY.

Says Explosives and Chemical Were Used For Experiments.

Antone F. Mente, a young Austrian, in whose rooms a quantity of explosives and chloroform was found by the New York police the other day, asserted yesterday that he was merely a student of chemistry and had no criminal intent in his experiments. Mente challenged the police to find anything irregular in his actions, and denied that he had received money from any foreign government. All his chemicals and apparatus, he said, were purchased with his own money. As to a code found in his room, he insisted he had made it for his own use.

At a meeting the class of R. V. C. yesterday, Miss Fannie Grindley and Miss Mary Taylor were chosen as the debaters for their year.

NAVIGATION IN THE BALTIC.

Stockholm, Sweden.—Owing to the presence of mine fields, as well as to the increasing activity of British submarines which have already accounted for some 15 German merchant ships in the Baltic, navigation in these waters has been considerably curtailed and threatens to come to a complete standstill. Recently, it is stated, 20 vessels with cargoes of iron ore for Germany were lying idle in Stockholm harbor, while many others which had already left the south of Sweden had to be recalled by wireless. The regular steamship service between Stockholm and Abo in Finland has also ceased, owing, it is believed, to the numerous mines which have been washed ashore along the coast near Stockholm. As a result of these increasing difficulties, the Swedish State War Insurance Company have decided to double their premiums. The Swedish press has stated its conviction that the British and Russian submarines which are operating in the Baltic use as their base a small bay in the Aaland Islands, which it is considered, would be eminently suited to this purpose.

God's sake, sir, come down; I've pushed the cork. Those personal experiments were indeed tricky things. Sir Robert Christian (1797-1882), once nearly killed himself with Calabar bean. He swallowed his shaving water, which acted promptly as an emetic, but he was very ill for some time. One of the most beautiful things in Simpson's story was the devotion of his own family to him, specially the care of his elder brother, Alexander. "Oh, Sandie, Sandie," said Simpson again and again to the faithful brother, who stood by him even on his death-bed. To the outside world he seemed the one Edinburgh figure of first importance. A citizen was presented at the Court of Denmark to the King of that country. "You come from Edinburgh," said His Majesty. "Oh, Sir Simpson was of Edinburgh."

An Opportunity to Hear Sir Wilfrid

A monster demonstration to Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be held on Thursday evening at the Monument National, St. Lawrence street, under the auspices of the Young Liberals' Association of Montreal. The Old Chief will be attended by Sir Lomer Gouin, the Hon. George P. Graham, the Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Hon. Charles Marcell and others.

Admission to the hall is gratuitous, but in order to enable students to hear the orators to better advantage, the executive of the Young Liberals have decided to set aside the first three rows of the gallery for their exclusive use. All members of McGill, therefore, will be admitted to these privileged seats upon showing their university passes, or other identification cards.

NEWS FROM HARRY BEATTY

Is Quartermaster-Sergt. in 26th Battery.

KNOCKS THE SLACKERS

Was Pres. of Daily and Arts Rep. on Students' Council in 1914.

The following are extracts from letters received by relatives from Harry C. Beatty, Arts '15, who is now with the Canadian force in England. Besides being president of The Daily, Harry was representative of the Arts Faculty on the Students' Council: Westenhanger, Nov. 13, 1915.

"I don't blame English people for going to the Continent or any other place in the winter time. Do you know that during the last week we have had one day that the sun peeped out? Besides this, the wind and rain make a fine mixture on this clay soil. Mud on your boots, on your clothes, in your hair—and it is almost impossible to keep it from laying peacefully in your bed!

Since our new O.C. arrived we have all been busy. It will be necessary for me to make some explanatory remarks on "busy." The hardest share of the work falls on sergeants, and especially on the sergeant-major and quartermaster-sergeant. In all this mud we have to see that vehicles and harness are absolutely clean at each morning parade. Everything has to be just so, or there are fireworks. We are all getting a fine training, however, and there is no favoritism.

"I think we will have a fine battery in a short time. We are being pushed, and believe me, I have never worked so hard! This applies to all the sergeants.

"The two letters from home have just arrived. I was interested to learn that they were having recruiting meetings in the old town. This life would certainly do some of the lazy fellows who are staying comfortably at home, a great issue behind it all, men might be pardoned for not doing something, but as it is, there can be no excuse.

"I am convinced now, more than ever, that conscription would be a bad thing. If England can carry on this war without compulsory service, it will be one of the finest examples of the force of the free English law, and one of the deadliest blows to armed autocracy.

"Next week we start our night manoeuvres. Then we will go to Wales for three weeks' shooting, and after that to France, or, according to the latest rumor, Serbia."

In another letter, Quartermaster-Sergeant Beatty describes a visit to Canterbury Cathedral, which is only twenty miles from Westenhanger. He says:

"The old Cathedral is magnificent. I think it is much grander than St. Paul's or Westminster Abbey, in that its surroundings are so beautiful. One of the boys had a camera and we took several pictures.

"There is a fine hostelry in Canterbury, known as the 'Pleur de Lis,' where we had steak and chops, coffee and cabbage, all of which was very nicely cooked.

"We are being pushed at a terrible rate, and everybody is working his head off. Our new O. C. has been at the front, and his experience is a fine thing for the Battery."

Then follows a description of the way in which they are working, in the course of which he describes in detail an inspection by the colonel:

"You are warned the day preceding the inspection, and everybody gets all his equipment in as good shape as possible."

"In the morning you are inspected by the lieutenants, then by the captain and then by the major. After he finishes, the lieutenant-colonel of the brigade along with a staff officer goes around and looks into every strap, etc."

"There is no rest in this game. He is lucky who wears no stripes. If, perchance, he wears a crown, his trials and tribulations are almost beyond endurance. Thank Heaven, I'm not nervous!

"I absolutely don't have time to write except on Sunday. Our lights go out very early on account of Zepp. raids, and so we have to do all our writing in the daytime."

Beatty's address for some time will be Quartermaster-Sergt. H. C. Beatty, No. 89737, 26th Battery, 7th Brigade, Canadian Contingent, Westenhanger, Kent, England.

CAPTAIN ABNER KINGMAN JOINS 148TH BATTALION

WELL-KNOWN GRADUATE

Other Appointments to Commissions are Lieut. J. E. Hoare, of the C. O. T. C. as Signalling Officer, and Lieut. Harold Key, of the Auxiliary Battalion of the McGill C. O. T. C.

Among the appointments to the new 148th Battalion, C. E. F., announced yesterday at headquarters, was that of Capt. Abner Kingman, Jr., of the McGill Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps, to the post of platoon commander in the new unit. Captain Kingman is a well-known McGill graduate and business man. He is 28 years of age and the son of Abner Kingman, of Montreal, director of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and other financial institutions. Capt. Kingman graduated in Arts in 1908, ranking first in his class. He was quite prominent in athletics at the university, being captain of the Arts hockey team in 1907 and treasurer of the McGill Tennis Club for several years. Later, he has kept in touch with students' affairs through his connection with the McGill Union as chairman of the advisory board. This post he has held for three years.

A year ago Captain Kingman joined the C. O. T. C., and shortly afterwards attained the rank of lieutenant. He was recently promoted to a captaincy. In business circles in Montreal, Capt. Kingman is well known, being a member of the bond and investment brokerage firm of McKenzie & Kingman.

Lieut. J. E. Hoare, of the C. O. T. C., has been appointed signalling officer of the 148th. Lieut. Hoare, who is a graduate of Cambridge, is engaged in insurance work in the city. He joined the C. O. T. C. last session and became sergeant of the signal section later on. When Lieut. Tildmarsh left the C. O. T. C. to join the 87th Grenadier Guards, C. E. F., Lieut. Hoare succeeded him as signalling officer. Later he has been acting as signalling instructor to the Universities Companies, P.P.C.L.I.

TORONTO HOSPITAL NOW IN MACEDONIA

Movements of Hospital Corps Are Shrouded in Mystery, Says Report.

Word has been received in Toronto giving assurance that an advance party of No. 4 Toronto University Hospital has been sent to Macedonia. It is not known if the whole hospital corps has gone forward or not, but this is not considered likely. The letter, which comes from Dr. W. J. O. Malloch, is brief, and states that four of the staff, including himself and Captain Van Wyck, are in Macedonia. This was written on November 5.

Dr. Malloch, with Capt. Van Wyck, and two others, have acted as an advance party all along the route. Dr. Malloch wrote from Salonika on Nov. 2, saying: "We expect the others tonight. We have a gang of men putting up the tents, and camp is all ready."

From word received from Dr. J. A. Roberts, however, it was learned that the main body of the Hospital Corps did not reach Salonika until Nov. 11. By Nov. 5 the advance party had been moved on to Macedonia. The movements of the Hospital Corps are covered in mystery, and word is anxiously awaited by the Toronto relatives. An important cable sent by Mrs. Roberts to Dr. Roberts at Salonika is unanswered, which makes it appear that the corps has moved on to Macedonia. The Greeks are all very polite to us on the streets," wrote Dr. Malloch from Salonika. "We have nothing to do with them, but we have been well received. The harbor is full of warships with their guns trained on the city."

Dr. Malloch reported that officials everywhere have received the Canadians with courtesy.

TIME LIMIT FOR CALLERS.

Co-eds of the University of Minnesota have drawn up a set of specifications for sending male callers home by 10.30. In this regard the dean of women, Miss Margaret Sweeney, recently said: "Hang up a framed copy of the rules in some conspicuous place, girls. Then draw attention to the regulations with some timely remark. If all else fails, speak up openly and say: 'Time is up, boys.'"

Fine Furs Make Practical Gifts.
"FAIRWEATHERS" FURS

There could be nothing more useful, practical, sensible and acceptable to give as a Christmas gift than something in furs.

And because furs are a particular thing to select, and because you want to do so deliberately, it is not too soon to suggest choosing them now.

And this just leads us to say that "Fairweathers" Furs are the finest made and they cost no more, and sometimes less, than those of an indifferent sort and which carry no guarantee for satisfactory service and excellence of quality. "Fairweathers" Furs are sold with a guarantee.

PROF. PORTER ON COAL SUPPLIES OF COUNTRY

Will Lecture on This Subject Before the Montreal Metallurgical Association.

"The Coal Supplies of Canada" will be the subject of an address to be delivered before the Montreal Metallurgical Association this evening at 8.15 o'clock by Dr. J. Bonsall Porter, professor of mining of the university. The meeting will be held in the Chemistry Building, and a cordial invitation is extended both to students and to member of the university staff.

The coal supplies of the Dominion will be treated by Prof. Porter in relation to metallurgical requirements. The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides. At the last meeting of the association it was shown by Col. Cantley that for the production of pig iron in Ontario, a large part of the ore and nearly all the fuel is imported from the United States. It is therefore of interest to review the coal supplies throughout the Dominion, and to ascertain how far they are available, both in regard to their nature and location, to serve important national industries such as the production of pig iron and steel.

Dr. Porter recently conducted an economic investigation of the coals of Canada for the Dominion Government, and is well qualified to present a clear and comprehensive view of the situation.

MEDICO WAS BEATEN UP

Colored Student Attacked by Roughs in Point St. Charles.

John Parr, One of Those Implicated, Will be Sentenced by Judge Bazin to-morrow.

John Parr, one of the three men who four months ago assaulted Simpson Lennan, a colored student in Medicine, in Point St. Charles, breaking his nose and jaw, was found guilty by Judge Bazin in the Court of Sessions. Parr is a young man who has been giving the police much trouble in Point St. Charles.

Lennan, who lives at 256 St. Antoine street, was on his way to visit a friend in Centre street, when he was attacked at the corner of Conde and St. Patrick streets by three young men who knocked him down and kicked him in the face, breaking his nose and jaw. He was left lying on the sidewalk unconscious.

When the police arrived from the Grand Trunk street station, in response to a telephone call, they were informed by the watchman of one of the factories that Parr and two others well known in the vicinity, had assaulted the colored man. But they had got away before the police arrived. It was not until two weeks later that Constables Meade and Senecal ran across Parr on Centre street.

He was taken into custody and was identified by Lennan as one of the men who had attacked him. It was discovered then, that the other two who had been implicated in the row, had enlisted and gone to the front.

Parr pleaded not guilty, but on the evidence of Lennan, which was corroborated by the watchman who witnessed the assault, Judge Bazin said that he had no hesitation in finding him guilty. His Honor told Parr that there was no doubt in his mind but that he was one of the trio that attacked Lennan. Parr was sent back to Bordeaux and will be brought back to-morrow for sentence.

LIEUT. DAVIDSON ON LEAVE.

Son of Sir Chas. Davidson Suffering From Rheumatism.

Lieutenant Hugh Davidson, of the 24th Victoria Rifles, son of Sir Charles Davidson, is on a month's sick leave from the trenches. He was sent from the front suffering from rheumatism from exposure and after a time in the hospital went back to duty at the base. He was not fully recovered, however, and had to be relieved. He was sent first to the Duchess of Westminster's Hospital, then to London. He is now convalescing in Devon.

NO MORE SPIKES ON BRIGHT COLORS.

A field-grey (feld-gran) uniform of the plainest cut will henceforth, it is ordained, be the universal wear of the German Army in peace and in war. As the German paper from which this is reproduced, puts it: "All the gay dresses of our hussars will be relegated to museums." The helmet's spike goes. Only a ventilation-knob of dulled metal remains on top. Buttons also disappear, replaced by hooks and eyes—after the Russian Army style. The tunic becomes of a blouse-cut, with a black leather belt. The shoulder-strap braiding alone are to differentiate the various arms. Spiked helmets came in just ninety years ago. George IV much wanted to dress the British Army in them, but treasury economists prevented it.—Illustrated London News.

MICHIGAN STUDENTS BOOST MILITARY TRAINING BY VOTE.

Military training for university students received a boost Tuesday when Michigan undergraduates endorsed the plan for drill there by a vote of 1,040 to 922. Interest in the question is shown by the large vote polled in the two hours allowed by the Michigan Daily, which conducted the balloting.

The vote of members of the faculty at Michigan was in approximately the same proportion, eighty-three favoring training while fifty-five were opposed. It is thought that the student endorsement will have little effect on the decision of the board of regents.

AUSTRALIANS VISIT OTTAWA

Cadets Are Eager to Learn French Songs.

LIVELY DEBATE WAS HELD

College Band to be Formed With Father Lalonde at the Head.

Ottawa, Dec. 6.—The University was honored by the visit of the Australian Cadets last Tuesday. Many of the students admired their band so much that they attended several other of their performances during the few days the Cadets were in the city. The young men from the Commonwealth were very eager to learn the French songs. They had already heard many of them in the West and knew the choruses fairly well. Lieut. Simons' interesting speech on the object of the Cadets' tour, and his experiences since coming to Canada were pleasing features of the morning's reception. The French Glee Club, under the directorship of the Rev. Father Lalonde, entertained the visitors with several choruses.

The Australian flag was for the first time in the history of the Commonwealth, officially displayed in Ottawa by the Cadets. Lieut. Simons gave a brief explanation of the different stars which are to be seen on the lower portion of the flag, and which are representative of the individual states of the Commonwealth.

Rector Father Louis Rheame has returned from Montreal.

The gymnastic classes have commenced at the University, being held twice a week. Mr. Emery is making good progress with the boys and already has some of them performing difficult acrobatic stunts.

A warm discussion took place last Monday at the weekly debate. The subject was: Resolved, That the United States should have entered the European war on the side of the Allies. After the discussion was finished by the regular debaters, speakers from the floor made some rather slighting remarks about the American pacifist attitude. Some of the American students took the "insults" to heart and a wordy battle over the sinking of the Lusitania ensued.

In the midst of the controversy the moderator, Mr. Cullinan, interposed and apologies were in order. The affirmative side of the debate was upheld by V. J. O'Neill and A. E. Corrigan. The negative side which was awarded the decision, was debated by J. Grace and R. White.

The French Glee Club have decided to form a College band. This scheme is a result of the admirable performance of the Cadet band at the reception last Tuesday morning. Rev. Father Lalonde who has considerable experience in the formation of glee clubs and other musical societies, has undertaken the directorship of the band.

The subject for next Monday's debate is as follows: "Resolved, The Canadian Government should own and operate the Canadian railways."

The College Inter-mural hockey league will not start until after Christmas, because the College closes on the 23rd for the Christmas holidays, and ice will hardly be good enough by then.

It has not yet been definitely decided in what manner the hundred dollars which Controller Fisher has so kindly donated to be distributed as prizes for the best knowledge of civic affairs will be awarded. Controller Fisher desires to have prizes given for the best essays on Ottawa's civic management, but it has been thought advisable that a debate should be held on these topics and prizes awarded to the best speakers.

The competition was originally confined to the students of the Collegiate course, but by special permission the students of the Arts course will also be allowed to compete.

Queer Quest Queers Quiet Queen's Queens

Kingston Standard.—An absolutely brainless but somewhat amusing incident took place in front of the Grand Opera House last night when five Queen's students were "kidnapped" and rushed away in an automobile.

The five young men were leaving the Opera House with young ladies when their "friends" took them prisoners and delegating escorts for the girls, put them into automobiles and drove them away. Each of the students was captured in turn and although they resisted the capture, only one was able to get away. He made a dash up Princess street leaving girl and everything else out of the question for the time being.

The affair caused quite a lot of interest around the theatre for some time and a large crowd soon gathered to see what was going on.

A HAND-SPRINGING HALF-BACK.

The hand-springing half-back is the newest thing in football. He is Simmons of Texas University, and his acrobatic stunt has netted him the ordinary player could not make. When Simmons, carrying the ball, is about to be tackled, he leaps over the head of the tackler, turns a one-handed hand-spring, while hugging the ball to his chest with the other hand, lands on his feet and continues down the field. Simmons has scored several touchdowns by leaping over the head of the only man between himself and the goal of his opponents. The play, when successful, is one of the most sensational and spectacular sights ever seen on a football field.

R.V.C. FRESHIES WIN FROM THE SENIORS

Last of Inter-Class Series Won by '19 Class, 30-18.

Yesterday the last of the series of inter-class basketball matches was played between the Seniors and Freshies. The Seniors have a unique record as in all their four years they have never won a basketball game. At the crucial moment they did not fail, but lost again by the small margin of 30-18. The first year put up a good game; their forwards, Miss Louie Macdonald and Miss Lindsay were almost sure shots. The stars for the Seniors were Miss Currie and Miss Younger. Both teams showed a sad lack of combination and the number of fouls for the Seniors was quite shocking.

The inter-year matches have resulted in a three-cornered tie—the Juniors, Sophs, and Freshies each having won two games. These years will play off after the Christmas holidays. The line-up was as follows.

Seniors — Centre, G. McDonald; wings, A. Younger, E. Henry; guards, E. Lipsett, M. Currie; baskets, H. Fraser, M. Cameron.

Freshies — Centre, G. Craig; wings, R. Solomon, W. Blampin; guards, H. Grindley, K. Milligan; baskets, L. Macdonald, M. Lindsay.

BIG CHIEF DEMUTH WRITES JOE DONNELLY

One Old Football Player Sends Dashing Epistle to Another.

The following is a breezy screed from Otto Demuth, the old line plunger and hockey king of McGill. It is written to Joe Donnelly, another football giant, and the reference to Joe's forcing qualities will be relished by McGill students:

"Ha! ha! The Big Chief has come to life at last!

"How is the old boy, anyway? Heard you were coaching McGill and some Irish club in the east end. Pep Paisley is coaching M.A.A.A., and I heard you and Bill Hughes had turned out to strengthen up the line. Sir Charles Monroe asked me the other day if we had a big gun in Canada to ram the Straits with. I referred him to you, Joe.

"I joined the R.A.M.C. on June 4th, as you know. Fourteen of us did so, and have never felt more pleased at doing so than now. Was stationed four months in Limerick, Ireland, where we had a very stiff training and an exceedingly good time. You would have been right in your element there.

"Came here on October 8th, and am now attached to St. George's Hospital (1200 beds). I have complete charge of seventy beds, and they are always crowded. Most of my cases are medical, but have a dozen surgical right along.

"Kean is with me here. We are getting a wonderful experience, old boy. Ramsay, Walcott and Leeson are at the Peninsula and Lemnos.

"Give my best wishes to all the boys—especially the old gridiron boys of old.

"Drop us a line, Joe, as soon as possible, and give us all the news."

CORNELL DISCARDS MASCOT.

Touchdown, the mascot of the champion Cornell football team, has left for his home in Maine after accompanying the red and white through its most successful season. Touchdown, the bear that travelled from Ithaca to Cambridge, Ann Arbor and Philadelphia, bringing victory to Dr. Sharpe's team, will be returned to his former owner, Garland, of Oldtown, Me.

Next season a young bear cub will be obtained to take Touchdown's place, Manager Kent, of the football team, announced. Touchdown had grown too old for the management to keep at his temporary home in the baseball cage on the hill.

INDIANA STUDENTS PREPARE.

The students of the University of Indiana have organized a national guard. This action has been pending for some time past. Nearly a hundred men have already joined the detachment. Drill quarters have been arranged for.

RUTGERS AND OREGON BAN B.B.

That college sentiment throughout the country is not entirely favorable to intercollegiate basketball is shown by the action taken by Rutgers College and the University of Oregon. Both of these institutions have abolished basketball as an intercollegiate sport.

LEHIGH STADIUM TO BE FINISHED.

Lehigh University's football stadium will be completed at an early date. Through the financial aid of Mr. C. M. Schwab, the steel magnate, and several other loyal alumni, the necessary funds have been raised, and work on the final structure will begin immediately.

HIS DILEMMA.

Jimmie: "What's the matter with you? Got a grouch?"
Chimie: "Yeh. I dunno what to do Christmas eve. If I plug de hole in de winder wid me sock I won't have nothing to hang up for Santa Clause, and if I don't plug it I'll freeze before he comes."—Christmas Life.

Professor Giles, of the University of Cambridge, in speaking of the immense population of China, has made the following statement. "If the Chinese should begin to file past this university to-day, the procession would never end, for the next generation would begin to pass before the present had gone by."

HOW A MAN CAN BE HIS OWN GRANDFATHER.

I married a widow who had a daughter. My father visited our house frequently, fell in love and married my step-daughter. Thus my father became my son-in-law and my step-daughter my mother, because she was my father's wife. My step-daughter had also a son; he was, of course, my brother and at the same time my grandchild, for he was the son of my daughter. My wife was my grand-mother, because she was my mother's mother. I was my wife's husband and grandchild at the same time, and as the husband of a person's grandmother is his grandfather, I was my own grandfather.

Earl—"Yes, wunst."
Teacher—"Clarence, should Earl have said 'wunst'?"
Clarence—"No; he should have said 'twit'."

—is such a small thing, comparatively speaking, that it seems unimportant. Yet the taste depends very largely on the quantity and quality of salt used. At the Aird Bakeries we use the finest, purest salt crystals, such as you consider good enough to appear at your table.
